Atherton woman pushes for high-tech tools so older people can stay active and independent

Susan Ayers Walker demonstrates use of a talking prescription bottle at her home office in Atherton.

Among devices designed to help aging or disabled people live more healthfully, comfortably and independently are, left, “bionic” gloves for people suffering from arthritis; bottom left, a heart monitor that can be inserted in the front of a sports bra; below, a keyboard with alphabetically arranged keys for people who don't know how to type and have trouble writing longhand.

SUSAN AYERS WALKER OF ATHERTON unabashedly calls herself “The Gadget Queen.” And given her decades-long career in leading-edge technology, it seems only right that she would stay on the lookout for the latest high-tech tools to create an efficient environment in which to live, work and play.

Over the last several years, the same curiosity, determination and innovative spirit that fueled her successful career also has led her to issue a challenge to Silicon Valley: Grow up.

She has — and she's done so in the company of some 78 million of her fellow baby boomers, who now range in age from 42 to 60. But though baby boomers remain the population's largest demographic, Silicon Valley is still designing its gadgets and working tools for 12- to 26-year-olds, Ms. Walker says.

“And that doesn't help me with my cell phone — I can't see the damn buttons.”

Ms. Walker has done more than just challenge the Valley, where she logged in countless working hours in years past. To encourage and support high-tech companies' efforts to develop products designed to help the aging remain active and live independently for a longer time in their own homes, she started a nonprofit company, called SmartSivers Alliance.

Through the company, Ms. Walker and her business partner, Mike Sarfatti, have worked to match up high-tech companies with venture capitalists for product research and development, helped the researchers put trials together to test the products, and helped educate consumers about what's available to help them or their aging family members.

At SmartSivers' Web site, smartsivers.com, you can find tools and devices ranging from a talking prescription pill bottle that tells its owner what's inside and when to take the medication, to "bionic" gloves to help people with arthritic hands continue to do things such as gardening or everyday tasks.

There are home health monitoring systems, a device that allows the user to send and receive e-mails without a computer, cell phones for the hard-of-hearing or equipped with a diabetes-monitoring system, a voice-responsive remote control for your television, and programs to improve mental agility.

Some of the products cater to people on the younger end of the "50-plus" population that Ms. Walker supports through SmartSivers. There's a heart-rate monitor that slips into a sports bra, and "high-tech clothing" that lessens the impact of women's hot flashes — a label called "Hot Mamas' Pajamas."

"We go out and find products, then educate people on (their) availability," Ms. Walker says. "We hope to stimulate people to say, 'Maybe I can take care of myself if only I can remember to take my medication,' or use some of the other assistive gadgets and devices that are out there."

Heading the parade

Born in 1946, Ms. Walker is at the head of the parade of baby boomers marching toward their 60s. She naturally considers herself a likely consumer of some of the products she supports and promotes, but her interest in her chosen work developed years ago.

"I had to intervene in my parents' lives (because of their failing health) fairly early on — they were in their 60s," she explains.

The experience opened her eyes to the realities and uncertainties of aging long before many people have to consider them. "I realized at a fairly early age: That's going to be me somewhere down the road."

As time went on, she found herself being tapped into as a resource for friends who had to intervene with their own parents as their health declined to the point they couldn't remain independent.

'Nothing ever happens without a champion.'

SUSAN AYERS WALKER

These experiences led her to her present role as an educator and an advocate for innovative solutions to problems traditionally encountered by the aging body.

In addition to her work with SmartSivers Alliance, Ms. Walker also writes for the AARP magazine as a freelancer. In a recent column for the magazine — one that appeared in similar form in the Almanac earlier this year — Ms. Walker wrote of the baby boomer generation: "... (G)iven a choice, we would prefer to stay out of managed care as long as possible and will look seriously at technology to help us maintain that independence, our health, mobility and quality of life."

She says the insurance industry needs to wake up to the benefits of emerging high-tech products that let people take a more active role in monitoring conditions and their overall health. She wants insurance companies to offer coupons for discounts on such products and lower rates for people using them.

SmartSivers, she says, is a champion pushing such policies in addition to supporting development of technologies to benefit the aging population.

"Nothing ever happens without a champion," she says. ■

Father and daughter, Tetsu Ishihara and Tomiko Ishihara of Menlo Park, both play cello for the Peninsula Symphony.

Menlo Park father and daughter share passion for cello, music

By Stephanie Cadora

Special to the Almanac

By day, Tomoko Ishihara searches for life in the outer solar system as a physicist for NASA/Ames Research Center at Moffett Field.

Her father, Tetsu Ishihara, advises Japanese businesses on how to bring products into the United States.

But when the workday ends, the two are swept into another world altogether, the center of which is the musical instrument they are both devoted to: the cello.

The Menlo Park father and daughter have spent considerable time in recent weeks preparing for the Oct. 13-14 concerts to be performed by the orchestra they hold chairs in, the Peninsula Symphony.

The two share “a common understanding of music from playing the same instrument,” says Mr. Ishihara, a native of Japan.

“Playing music helps people get together very closely,” he says. “Music is joy beyond the

The whole family is musical. Tetsu’s wife, Mayumi Ishihara, is an accomplished pianist who introduced her daughter to music as soon as she could walk and talk. “I was 2 or 3 years old when I learned piano in Japan,” Tomoko Ishihara says. “When I was 10, I was exposed to the school orchestra and picked cello as my instrument.”

She had considered violin, but “I liked playing cello,” she adds. “I wanted to be as good as, or better than, my father. I wanted to be unique.” Her mother helped for years by accompanying her on the piano.

Ms. Ishihara also had several cello teachers, two in Japan. The first, she says, had a traditional European style; the sounds were rigid and difficult to play. She preferred her second teacher, who was “a lot more musical, lyrical, passionate.”

It was Carol Reiss of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music who taught her basic technique and to whom she would return for lessons if she had the time, she says.

Performance: 'Viva L'Italia'

The Peninsula Symphony opens its 58th season with "Viva L'Italia" at the San Mateo Performing Arts Center on Oct. 13 and at the Flint Center at DeAnza College in Cupertino on Oct. 14.

The concert, directed by Mitchell Sardou Klein and assistant conductor Geoffrey Gallegos, features guest artists soprano Sandra Rubalcava and baritone Daniel Narducci in an evening of Italian opera arias and popular Neopolitan songs.

Admission is $28 for students and seniors, and $33 for adults. To purchase tickets, visit peninsulasympphony.org or call 941-5291.

The performing arts center is at 600 N. Delaware Street in San Mateo; DeAnza College is at Highway 85 and Stevens Creek in Cupertino.

Sacred Heart stages Neil Simon play

Drama students at Sacred Heart Preparatory will stage Neil Simon's "Fools" on two weekends, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13, 14, 20 and 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Campbell Center for the Performing Arts on the campus of Sacred Heart Schools in Atherton.

The comic fable is based on a traditional Ukrainian folk tale, "The Village of Idiots."

The play revolves around Leon Tolchinsky, who after landing a terrific job as a teacher in an idyllic Russian hamlet, arrives to learn of a 200-year old curse that makes every man, woman and animal born stupid. He also learns that he has just 24 hours to break the curse or he will become stupid as well.

Why does he stay? He falls in love. Can he break the curse and get the girl? Find out.

CELLO

Now, she says: "Relaxation is a big part of why I do it. I also socialize with people from the symphony." She is interested, she explains, in the different perspectives fellow musicians gain from playing their various instruments.

At NASA Ames, she uses nanotechnology to try to recreate conditions the Mars rovers transmit to earth. "Mars is a hot topic," she says. "All the elements for life are there."

Mr. Ishihara got his start with the cello in his high school orchestra in Japan. The visual element of music attracts him, he says, adding that the first concerto he played "was like falling leaves in autumn."

Both musicians cite a range of composers and cellists they admire and who have inspired them. Most exciting to them, Ms. Ishihara says, is the musical expression of cellist Yo-Yo Ma — from his interpretation of classical music to his "Silk Road" and "Soul of the Tango" recordings.

"I'd like to do tango," she says. "It's a passionate way of playing."

Mr. Ishihara likes "Silk Road" for its "Oriental flavor." He says he was excited to see the acclaimed cellist when he performed in San Francisco. "He's not so heavy, but gives a strong impression to the audience. He's very elegant," he says.

When father and daughter practice at home, they play "in different rooms, at different times. There are no great pieces for two cellos," Mr. Ishihara says. So the only time they play together is in the symphony orchestra.

Five years ago, the Ishihara family started, along with a neighbor who is a violinist, a group called the Dunsmuir Trio, named after the street on which they live. Mayumi Ishihara plays piano, and her husband and daughter trade off playing cello.

Two or three times a year, they give concerts in their home to groups of about 20 people. "Live music is very different from recorded music," Mr. Ishihara says. When playing with other musicians "new ideas emerge."

Mr. Ishihara first played in the Peninsula Symphony when he came to the area on business in 1989. But business took him back to Japan in the early 1990s.

Since 1996, he has played with the orchestra consistently. His daughter signed on in 2000 while she was home for summer vacation from Reed College in Portland.

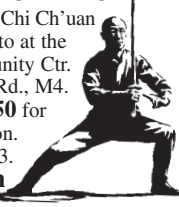

Ms. Ishihara says she's excited about the upcoming symphony concerts. "They will open with an Italian theme. It's a great way to begin the season." ■

Kepler's celebrates rebirth with multiple events

"Day in the Park" event Oct. 14

To celebrate the one-year anniversary of its rebirth, Kepler's bookstore in Menlo Park will host many events in October, "Day in the Park" Oct. 14, a celebration of local authors, artists, musicians and storytellers; and some 30 programs with authors.

Also, Kepler's is conducting its annual membership drive in October. People can sign up for the bookstore's Literary Circle online, at the store, or at the Day in the Park. Members receive a rewards card, discounts, invitations to special author events and receptions, and a thank-you gift.

Day in the Park

On Saturday, Oct. 14, at Burgess Park in the Menlo Park Civic Center, Kepler's will host a free family "Day in Park" – a celebration of local authors, artists, musicians and storytellers – from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The event includes food, activities for children, an outdoor bookstore selling more than 100 titles by local authors, and a "bookswap" – bring a book, take a book.

Among the artists will be jewelry designer Soni Bergman, photographer Marc Silber, illustrator and painter Liz Amini-Holmes, computer-animation designer Mark Cordell Holmes, jewelry designer Mendy Marks, and ceramic artist Suzanne Couch.

Local musicians who will perform are Sandy Greenfield, singer/songwriter of a blend of acoustic folk, rock and hip hop with instrumentalist Adam Rothschild; the David Chaidez Quintet, which puts a modern spin on old standards; the Higher Ground Players, soul, jazz and hip-hop musicians; and Summit Jazz Band.

Among the storytellers will be: Walter Mayes, aka Walter the Giant; Alice Kalomas, author of "Sir Wrinkles"; Tammy Coia, author of the autobiographical "Fig on a Stick"; Dashka Slater, author of "Baby Shoes" and "Firefighters in the Dark"; Becky Zeren, folk tales from around the world; and the Peninsula Youth Theater, young theatric entertainers.

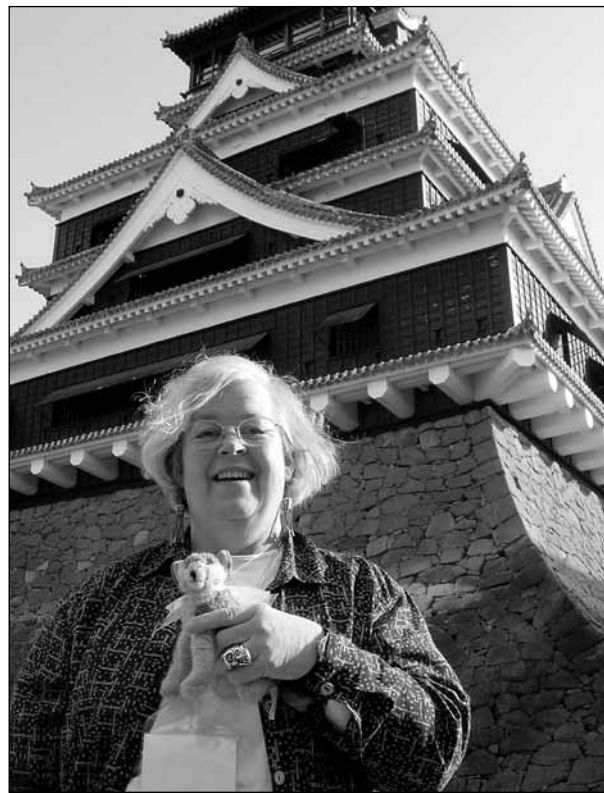

Local community organizations and merchants will participate.

Author events

Authors who will appear at Kepler's bookstore during the month include Neil Gaiman, Emily Wu and Larry Engelmann, Maxine Hong Kingston, Francine Prose, Carly Fiorina, William Cope Moyers, Keith Thompson, Jim Newton, Alex Kershaw, Tina Cassidy, Nell Freudenberger, and Jacob S. Hacker.

In addition, Kepler's is co-hosting off-site events with such authors as Elizabeth Edwards, Cindy Sheehan, Firoozeh Dumas, Khaled Hosseini, and Mavericks at Work author Polly LaBarre.

Among other events on tap this fall: Sunday Story Times with authors such as Bob Barner and Madeleine Dunphy; Spook Night with Dave Keane; Diva Night with children's publisher reps; and author Francesca Lia Block.

Kepler's is located at 1010 El Camino Real in Menlo Park. For more information, go to <http://www.keplers.com> ■

'Anything Goes' fundraiser at TheatreWorks' scene shop

Expect to see a bishop, cancan dancer, Grecian goddess or a Chinese emperor at "Anything Goes," the TheatreWorks annual fundraiser, to be held at 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, in the TheatreWork's scene shop, 1110 Hamilton Court in Menlo Park.

Guests traditionally stop by TheatreWork's costume shop and pick out lavish outfits from one of the company's past productions to wear to the party.

The evening will feature cocktails and a sit-down dinner by McCall Associates, dancing to David Martin's Houseparty, and a live auction of such items as an adventure package to India, tickets to the annual Emmy Awards, and dinner at Chez TJ with Broadway composer Andrew Lipppa.

Proceeds from the event will support TheatreWorks' performances and new works programs.

The gala committee is headed by Julie Kaufman of Atherton and Anne Hambly of Los Altos.

Tickets range from $250 to $500 per person. To request an invitation or for more information, call Sarah Grojean at 463-7125.

Mavericks in business topic of program

Polly LaBarre, co-author of "Mavericks at Work: Why the Most Original Minds in Business Win," and David Kelly, founder of IDEO and head of Stanford's Hasso Plattner Institute of Design, will participate in a panel discussion on the role of innovators and startups in business.

The program will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 11, at Stanford's Wallenberg Hall (Building 160).

In addition to the panel discussion, there will be a presentation of a "Maverick Manifesto" and a book signing for "Mavericks at Work," co-authored by William C. Taylor.

The program is co-sponsored by the Hasso Plattner Institute of Design and Kepler's Books.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF JEFFREY LEW CASE NUMBER 115708

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both, of JEFFREY LEW.

A PETITION for probate has been filed by: YING ZHOU in the Superior Court of California, County of SAN MATEO

THE PETITION for probate requests that YING ZHOU be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on October 30, 2006 at 9:00a.m. in Dept. 14, 400 County Center, Redwood City, CA 94063.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code Section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for petitioner: Vivian Lu, 35485-B Dumbarton Court, Newark, CA 94560, (510) 494-1188.

(ENDORSED) FILED San Mateo County, September 28, 2006. Clerk of the Superior Court by L. Perez, Deputy Clerk.

PRESTIGIOUS LINDENWOOD

72 Juniper Drive, Atherton

Enviably located just off historic Flood Circle in desirable Lindenwood, this estate-style property offers a 5-bedroom, 5.5-bathroom two-level floorplan. A beautiful blend of traditional Adam-style refinement and contemporary amenities, this elegant Colonial style home offers over 6100 square feet of living space. Old World craftsmanship is expressed by vast sweeps of hardwood flooring, elegant mantelpieces, a cherry-appointed library, versatile sunroom, and a tremendous granite-finished kitchen opening to an expansive family/recreation room. In addition, a charming cabana adjoins the striking swimming pool and spa, while a delightful art studio includes its own wisteria-draped terrace. With a gated semi-circular driveway and discreetly secluded location, this residence is stunning.
