Stanford Trauma Center program helps older adults develop balance and agility to avoid falls and injuries

The Almanac/Veronica Weber

Audrey Avis Aasen-Hull of Menlo Park gets a little help from occupational therapist Marla Mather of the “Farewell to Falls” program during a recent home visit.

IT’S HAPPENED AGAIN. ANOTHER SENIOR HAS ARRIVED AT STANFORD’S TRAUMA CENTER WITH A HEAD INJURY. BLOOD IS EVERYWHERE.

The patient caught his foot on the edge of the carpet and crashed head-first into the dining-room table. He may be lucky, requiring only several stitches and bed rest, but for other patients, such a fall can precipitate the end of independence: a broken hip, brain injury or a fractured spine.

To prevent such tragedies, Stanford Trauma Center at Stanford University Medical Center created “Farewell to Falls,” a free assessment and agility-training program for older adults.

The growing numbers of injured prompted the course.

More than one million older adults in California fall each year, with 200,000 of those falls resulting in injury; and 188 people ages 55 and older are hospitalized every day from slips, trips and falls, according to the program’s Web site.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates older adults who have fallen or who frequently stumble are two to three times more likely to fall within the next year.

Of the 600 emergency room cases at Stanford annually, 150 will be trauma-related. Nearly half of those cases will require hospitalization, according to Ellen Corman, injury-prevention coordinator for the trauma service.

The kinds of injuries Stanford staff treat range from lacerations and head injuries to broken bones, including wrists and hips.

“The most serious are hip fractures, which can cause the greatest loss of independence. The number of people with a broken hip who can’t return home is just huge,” Ms. Corman said.

Most falls can be prevented by improved balance, flexibility and strength training, medication review and simple home modifications, she said.

Adults who feel dizzy or weak should see a doctor and have blood pressure and medications checked. Medications play a large part in causing falls. Many seniors take as many as eight to 12 medications, some with similar side effects that can compound, she said.

“Farewell to Falls” accepts patients who have had a previous fall. Participants must live in San Mateo or Santa Clara counties and must live independently or with a spouse. They must be ambulatory and cannot have severe dementia, Ms. Corman said.

Hull to assess risk factors in their home. She taught the couple strength-training exercises, such as the Sit and Be Fit program, which helps seniors to heal and gain strength and flexibility while sitting in a chair or using the chair as an exercise tool. Such strength training will help the couple have the strength to stay upright or, after a fall, to get up off the ground.

After providing a video showing the exercises and conducting two sessions with the couple, staff will follow up with a phone call every two to three weeks for a year.

"As you get older, you become a victim of your own weaknesses, so to speak," said Ms. Aasen-Hull, who at 90 still plays violin in a string quartet. "I've fallen so many times I can't keep count — at least 50 times."

She said that no cause has been determined for her falls, but she often finds herself tripping on the edge of a rug or having one slip out from under her. She has hurt herself, but so far hasn't broken anything.

Ms. Aasen-Hull's medical history was taken by program staff and recommendations were made to her physician. Grab bars for the develop the tools to remain fall-free, Ms. Cormann said. Many programs are available to help older adults avoid that first fall. The YMCA and Avenidas offer classes geared toward strengthening and balance for the older adult.

Avenidas hosts 12 fitness classes, and all have components of strength, flexibility and balance, said Judith Taksa Webb, manager of Avenidas' education and leisure program. "Strong for Life" employs elastic bands to promote the activities of daily living. Participants strengthen and gain flexibility in joints needed to perform tasks such as rising from a chair or bed. Tai chi heightens awareness of the body in space and improves balance, and Dayan Qigong, Chinese exercises to promote health and energy.

PORTOLA VALLEY SCHOOL DISTRICT
PARCEL TAX CITIZENS' OVERSIGHT
COMMITTEE

REPORT ON USE OF MEASURE C FUNDS
2005-06 SCHOOL YEAR

The Portola Valley School District Parcel Tax Citizens' Oversight Committee has held two meetings on May 10, 2006 and January 30, 2007 to review the use of Measure C funds for the 2005-06 school year. Committee members include: Chairperson Hilary Giles, Mr. Joseph Androlowicz, Ms. Jan Avilla, Ms. Carolyn Billheimer, Ms. Patty Pope, Mr. Stan Smith and Mr. Andy Thorson.

The Committee has reviewed the Portola Valley School District's 2005-06 budget, audit report, general ledger financial reports and parcel tax utilization data and has determined that Measure C funds have been used for the following purposes:

Class-Size Reduction - Grades 4 - 8*	$430,000
Staffing for Science, Math, & Reading Support	187,400
Classroom Materials	27,455
Staff Development	17,975

Math Curriculum Development

4,500

TOTAL $667,330

*Note: Class Size Reduction Funding for Kindergarten through 3rd Grade is provided by the State of California.

The Committee further finds that these expenditures are aligned with the purposes approved by the voters in Measure C in March 2004.

On the following pages are the financial documents which the Committee used in making this determination.

Copies of the records of the Parcel Tax Oversight Committee may be reviewed at the Portola Valley School District Office, 4575 Alpine Road in Portola Valley or on the District's web site at www.pvsd.net. The next meeting of the committee will be May 1, 2007 at 7:00 PM at the District Office.
