KOLIN VAZZOLER IS OUT TO SHOW HIS SKILLS AT MARCHÉ RESTAURANT

By Jane Knoerle
Almanac Lifestyles Editor

Kolin Vazzoler, the new executive chef at Marché restaurant, knows a thing or two about fine dining.

He comes to Menlo Park from Restaurant Gary Danko, where he was executive sous chef. The restaurant, founded by Gary Danko, is one of San Francisco's finest.

Mr. Vazzoler, who is from Canada, considers Mr. Danko a mentor. "He sponsored me to work in the States and helped me get my green card," he says.

That was in 2000. Before coming to the U.S., Mr. Vazzoler, 38, graduated from a culinary school program in Vancouver, British Columbia, and spent a three-year apprenticeship at the Four Seasons Hotel in Vancouver. He also worked at fine dining establishments in Vancouver, including Lumiere and Mustache Cafe.

Eager to become part of San Francisco's restaurant scene, he sent out resumes and ended up working at Gary Danko.

Now he's excited to be at Marché, where he has the opportunity to be in charge of his own kitchen. He's been on the job for only a few weeks.

Mr. Vazzoler lives in San Francisco but says he doesn't mind making the commute down to Menlo Park. He enjoys eating out in the city's restaurants on his days off. "I like to see what the others are doing," he says. He also visits the San Francisco and Marin farmers' markets to choose some of the fruits and vegetables for the restaurant.

MENLO PARK RESTAURANT HOPES TO SCALE THE CULINARY HEIGHTS BY OFFERING IMPECCABLE CUISINE

By Jane Knoerle

Restaurant Review

Lee Isgur, Menlo Park's Marché restaurant principal, has his sights on the stars — restaurant critics' stars, that is. With a new executive chef, Kolin Vazzoler, and an exciting new menu, he's intent on making Marché one of the five best restaurants in Northern California.

After dining there, I think he just might do it. The food served at Marché on a recent Friday night had a refinement you rarely see in Peninsula restaurants.

We were comfortably seated in a booth in the main dining room with a window onto the kitchen. The room, which can seem drab in the daytime, glows at night from oversized hanging lamps and votive candles.

We ordered from the a la carte menu. There is also a tasting menu, which can vary in price according to the selections, and a chef's tasting menu ($110) available on the weekends. The chef's menu is where chef Vazzoler presents his edgier creations. Some examples are: lamb and scallop tartar with strawberry and hyssop, and Tasmanian salmon belly with lobster and licorice broth.

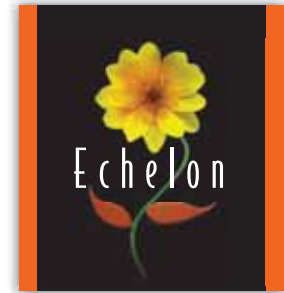

Before our appetizers arrived, we were served complimentary servings of lobster bisque. The amuse bouche, warm crusty rolls, and a nice bottle of pinot noir, put us in a good mood, despite the slow service.

The extensive wine list had selections by the glass, beginning at $10. There were many fine wines in the marketplace in French, has always showcased the best the market has to offer with a focus on fresh ingredients. Mr. Vazzoler has added new purveyors and features grass-fed beef in the restaurant.

Master-minding Marché's goal of becoming one of Northern California's top five restaurants is Lee Isgur, whose card identifies him as "Directeur de la Nuit" (night manager). "I have total authority and no responsibility," he says with a laugh. Mr. Isgur opened the restaurant in 2001 with partner and founding chef Howard Bulka. Mr. Bulka left the restaurant in February for new ventures; however, he remains a partner.

Mr. Isgur has been interested in cuisine since the days he was "in the investment business on Wall Street" and dined at New York City's best restaurants. His wife, Missy, is also an excellent cook, he adds. The Isgurs often travel to France, where they frequent the fine restaurants of Paris and Provence.

Both have attended Patricia Wells' cooking classes in Provence and have become friends of the well-known cookbook author and her husband, Walter Wells, former editor of the International Herald Tribune. (Ms. Wells was in town recently promoting her new memoir, "We'll Always Have Paris and Provence.")

The Isgurs moved to California in 1990 when he became an analyst for Paine Weber. Since those days, he has had "many dealings with Silicon Valley."

The Isgurs dine at Marché two or three times a week and enjoy the camaraderie of the young staff. It includes general manager Molly Fritz, who first came to Marché in December 2001, a month after it opened, as a server, and Guillaume Bienaime, chef de cuisine. A new pastry chef will be coming on board soon.

Mr. Isgur and Mr. Vazzoler are excited about the changes at Marché and what it can become in the future. Both are out to prove you don't have to go to San Francisco for fine food. And as Kolin Vazzoler says, "I've done other people's food, now it's time to do my own." ■ the $40 to $50 range. We chose a 2003 pinot noir Saint Aubin ($40), which perfectly complemented our dinners. There is also an impressive collection of fine wines for the "expense account" customer. Corkage fee is $25. There is also a full bar.

For a starter, I had soft-shell crab served on a bed of cherry tomatoes, white corn and pancetta ($16). The tasty little critter was dipped in panko crumbs and sautéed. Delicious.

My guest chose diver scallops ($18) as an appetizer. The dish could also be ordered as a main course ($33). It was accompanied by fava beans, hen of the woods mushrooms, artichokes, vadouvan (a French curry mixture) and brown butter. The ingredients were pristine, but she would have liked more sauce.

The same with a main course of roast squab breasts ($36) with spring onions, morels, haricot vert, and cherry balsamic. "Aren't the sauces what French cooking is all about?" she asked.

My loin of lamb was nicely medium rare, served over a slice of braised lamb shank, Scarlett Nantes carrots, eggplant, and a spoonful of "dukkah nuts and spices." I had to resort to Google learn more about the food. Scarlett Nantes carrots are described as "a classic among carrots, noted for old-time flavor." Dukkah nuts and spices are "an Egyptian blend based on a Middle Eastern recipe."

Pistachio-crusting pork loin ($36) accompanied by apricot chutney and red torpedo onion fondue, sounded like another delicious option.

Dessert was a sweet ending to the evening. Our choices were passion fruit coconut panna cotta ($11) from the contemporary section and milk chocolate creme brulee ($9) from the classic menu. My guest's panna cotta came with a lime-mint granita, passion fruit curd, and Earl Grey ice cream. She said the lime-mint granita was a refreshing ending to the meal.

The creme brulee was luscious and satisfying. A little plate of complimentary goodies completed the meal on a high note.

While Marché has been a stylish and pricey addition to the local restaurant scene since it opened in 2001, it's exciting to see the new direction it's taking with Chef Vazzoler and Mr. Isgur.

They are showing diners you don't have to drive to San Francisco or wait months for a reservation in Yountville to have a memorable dining experience. You can scale the culinary heights right here in our own hometown. ■

New cafe opens on El Camino Real

Jason's Cafe, which offers a broad menu ranging from old-fashioned diner fare to Asian-influenced salad rolls, recently opened its doors in Menlo Park at 1246 El Camino Real, the former home of Brix BBQ.

Open seven days a week, the new restaurant serves breakfast all day, but has lunch and dinner menus as well.

The extensive breakfast menu includes omelets and typical egg and meat combo dishes. It also includes eggs Benedict and variations on that classic; pancakes, waffles, French toast and crepes; and hearty skillet dishes.

Lunch and dinner menus include burgers, sandwiches, salads, quesadillas, pasta dishes, steak, chicken, pork chops, salmon, prawns, and other entrees.

The salad roll menu varies from a tuna roll and grilled shrimp roll to a Kobe beef roll, with a half-dozen items total.

There's also a kids' menu that includes macaroni and cheese, hamburgers and hot dogs, a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, and more.

Jason's, at 1246 El Camino Real, is open from 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and 5 to 10 p.m. For information, call 321-3300.

Lulu's taqueria expands

Looks like locals love Lulu's. Three years after Lulu's on the Alameda opened at 3539 Alameda de las Pulgas, the Mexican taqueria is expanding into the space formerly occupied by Royal Express Cleaners.

Owner Natalie Richardson of Menlo Park says expansion will be completed sometime this summer. "We definitely need to expand the kitchen and we will also have more seating," says Ms. Richardson. She estimates there will be seating for about 25 more patrons.

More kitchen space is needed for the business's growing catering division. "It's very exciting. We are doing a lot of corporate events, weddings, bar mitzvahs, parties."

After the expansion is completed, Lulu's hopes to feature soft-serve ice cream with assorted toppings.

On Friday nights through summer, a mariachi band plays on Friday nights and there are free homemade chips and salsa, plus $3 Corona bottled beer. Lulu's will stay open until 10 p.m. those nights.

The name Lulu refers to Lourdes Lopez, who has been head chef for the restaurant since it opened.

Ms. Lopez's family owns restaurants in Mexico. Many of the taqueria's recipes come from Lulu's repertoire.

Lulu's features burritos, tacos, chimichangas, quesadillas, nachos, enchiladas, fajitas, plus Lulu's special chopped salad, posole, chicken tortilla soup, and chicken vegetable soup. Breakfast features lots of egg combinations, including chilaquiles rojos and Lulu's favorite, chilaquiles verdes.

The taqueria uses all natural products, says Ms. Richardson. "Nothing comes out of a can."

Lulu's is also looking to start new project in Palo Alto. Stay tuned for later developments.

Tasting event June 14

La Honda Winery in the Fair Oaks neighborhood of Redwood City is hosting a tasting of its 2006 Santa Cruz Mountain pinot noir, syrah and other recently released wines on Saturday, June 14, from 1 to 6 p.m.

Much of the fruit that winemaker Ken Wornick uses for his La Honda wines comes from the backyard vineyards of Woodside, Portola Valley, Atherton and other Peninsula residents who hire Mr. Wornick to manage their vineyards. He also uses grapes he grows in his own vineyard, located in La Honda, as well as grapes from a few other California regions.

The tasting will be hosted by Ken and his wife, Cynthia Wornick, and their business partners, Don and Julie Modica. Julie, a local artist, oversees a gallery in the spacious winery, and wine tasters at the event can view new local art. She and Cynthia Wornick also take charge of the snacks served during tasting events.

The tasting fee is $10, which is credited toward the purchase of two or more bottles of wine during the event.

The winery is at 2645 Fair Oaks Ave. in Redwood City. For information, call 366-4104, or log on at lahondawinery.com. ■

Let's Ask Ann . . .

Dear Ann, a super agent...

Our home is listed for sale and our agent has a buyer for the property. Is it legal for her to be both the sellers and buyers agent?
Thanks, Robert & Jean

Dear Robert & Jean,

Absolutely! An agent may act as both the listing and selling agent provided the agent has made a disclosure and the principals have given their consent. Certain conditions apply in the agreement: 1. The agent will not disclose to the seller what the buyer is willing to pay. 2. The agent will not disclose to the buyer what price the seller is willing to sell their house for.

All the best,
Ann Griffiths
