Madera's dinner menu includes rainbow trout, top, with Dungeness crab, warm summer bean salad, cherry tomatoes, and sauce vierge; and, above, roasted veal chop with a ragout of sweetbreads, served with radishes, haricots verts, and creamer potatoes.

The old adage, "The better the view, the worse the food," does not apply to Madera, the new restaurant at the Rosewood Sand Hill hotel in Menlo Park.

The vista of the Santa Cruz Mountains is lovely, and so is the food.

Executive Chef Peter Rudolph calls Madera's cuisine "rustic American food." Presentation isn't fussy, but ingredients are top notch. He uses many of the same produce purveyors he came to know while heading the kitchen at Navio at the Ritz Carlton at Half Moon Bay. He also shops at local farmers' markets.

A good example of quality ingredients was the red Russian kale and stone fruit salad, with endive and blue cheese ($12), recently served at dinner. The raw kale was delicious and tender. White nectarine slices were sweet, and top-quality blue cheese added just the right zest.

The greens served at Madera make the simplest salads taste delicious. Their crunchy sweetness shames salad greens poured from a bag.

I've had lunch and dinner at Madera, but prefer dinner. The view of the Santa Cruz Mountains at twilight is magic. Diners dress up. The tables are nicely appointed, with plenty of room between them. There is the feeling you have been invited to a very nice party.

Our server started us off with an amuse bouche of ceviche served in a tiny white cup. We split the kale and fruit salad and settled back in comfortable chairs to await our entrees.

Rotisserie chicken from the open kitchen, considered Madera's signature dish, came with polenta, Swiss chard, and chicken sausage ($31). The chicken was moist and flavorful, but where was that crispy skin you find on most rotisserie chicken? The chicken sausage link added a piquant note and the sides were fine.

Grilled rib eye, served with mushrooms, Yukon gold potatoes, and spinach ($34) was a winner. "Best I ever ate" was a fellow diner's comment. We all tasted bites and agreed.

Rainbow trout stuffed with crab and served with cherry tomatoes, green beans and warm Italian bean salad ($32) sounded strange, but was very good, and a nice choice for a warm summer night.

Roasted cauliflower ($7) was a mushy disappointment; no comparison to the crisper version served at San Francisco's Perbacco.

Our server was gracious enough to bring three plates for strawberry rhubarb cobbler with creme fraiche ice cream. Wonderful, and I don't even like rhubarb. The portion was large enough for three. All dinner portions were very generous.

The finishing touch was a mignardise of three chocolate lychee truffles and a little dish of caramel corn. Complete with espresso and lattes, it was a meal to savor.

Lunch at Madera is more casual. Many guests sit outside to savor the view and sunshine. There is a nice selection of salads and a great-looking burger with cheddar cheese, bacon, fries and pickled vegetables ($18). The ingredients in salmon Nicoise ($16), especially the tiny green beans, were top quality, but the salmon was bland.

At another lunch, the chicken salad sandwich ($15), made

New Peet's Coffee opens in Menlo Park

Peetniks now have two local Peet's Coffee & Tea stores, where they can find their favorite brew. Peet's Menlo El Camino opened June 29 in the shopping plaza adjoining Safeway at 515 El Camino Real in downtown Menlo Park.

The new Peet's is 1,600 square feet, with indoor seating. Outdoor seating, awaiting a permit, will be added soon,

"while the weather is still gorgeous," says assistant manager Jamie Michael.

Coffee Freddos and Tea Freddos are popular choices with customers this summer, says Mr. Michael. "We make Coffee Freddos to order, so you can have it with soy or non-fat milk." The cool drink comes in three flavors: mocha, dark chocolate mocha, and dark chocolate caramel mocha.

Peet's Menlo El Camino is open from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekends.

Do people really show up at 5 a.m.? They do. "We usually have a couple people at the door, waiting for us to open," says Mr. Michael.

with generous pieces of rotisserie chicken and served with fries and mustard greens, was more to my taste than sand dabs with artichokes and parsley potatoes ($22). The sand dabs were fine, but the two artichokes pieces were miniscule. The dish was too buttery — I couldn't taste the lemon caper sauce.

Hope the soft shell crab BLT on grilled focaccia ($19) is still on the menu next time I return. It sounds fabulous.

Madera hits the right notes: luxurious, but approachable. Where else can you find upscale, yet casual, dining in a gorgeous setting? A
