Teens raise $50,000 for project in Kenya

This information was submitted by Stephanie Osborne, a parent of one of the founders of Kids Against Poverty.

Local teens have successfully raised $50,000 to fund the building of the Lewa Conservation Education Center in Kenya. The students are part of Kids Against Poverty (KAP), a nonprofit organization run by five kids.

The goal of KAP is to help break the cycle of poverty for impoverished children by creating opportunities and hope through education.

The funds will enable Kenyan children to learn about endangered species and the role conservation plays in education, health care and sustainable development.

The Lewa Education Center will include a meeting room, a small interactive museum room, and a computer center. The Lewa Conservancy, made up of 62,000 acres, is a model for wildlife conservation on private land in Eastern Africa.

The KAP kids raised the money several ways. Some 20 KAP kids were sponsored and ran a very blustery 12K race on Angel Island in San Francisco in December. Kids also made and sold greeting cards and African trade bead bracelets through their schools, and at sidewalk stands (at Roberts and Draeger's markets) and local retailers (Angela's and Poised of Menlo Park and Gitane of Palo Alto).

Since its inception, Kids Against Poverty has grown to include a network of socially minded young people. These Menlo students serve on its board of teenagers: Brock, Carter and Riley Burgess; Peter Osborne; Emily Addicott; and Amy Pinkus.

KAP members from schools throughout the Peninsula — such as Castilleja, Crystal Springs Uplands, Phillips Brooks, Woodside Priory, Woodside Elementary, and Menlo School — have joined to raise more than $125,000 since 2006 to fund educational programs in Kenya, Cambodia and Peru.

Please contact kidsagainstopoverty@gmail.com if you are interested in donating to KAP to help break the cycle of poverty through education.

Menlo School hosts Special Olympics

This story was submitted by Elisabeth Waymire, parent co-chair of the Menlo Games 2010.

Menlo School hosted the 19th annual Special Olympics Northern California Track & Field Meet on Sunday, April 18. More than 100 athletes participated in 15 track and field events, including the 50M run/walk, 4x100 relay, and long jump, plus adaptive sports activities such as the softball throw.

Some 250 Menlo Upper School

students teamed up with the athletes as buddies, to cheer them on and assist them with their activities. Menlo Upper School parents served a barbecue lunch and helped with the timing of track events.

Menlo Middle School students and parents ran an Olympic Village, which included games and crafts for athletes and their families to enjoy between events. All athletes received water bottles and T-shirts designed by Menlo students.

Volunteers included the staff with the Atherton and South San Francisco police departments. The event was supported by donations from Bianchini's Market, Gray's Paint Menlo Park, Hobe's California Restaurants, Noah's, Party Fiesta Balloon Decor, Peter Draeger, Posh Bagel, Roberts Market, Sigona's Farmers Market, and Whole Foods Market.

It was a memorable day for the whole community.

You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff.
