Armando Fagliano teaches a few spectators how to rope a calf at the 2008 Woodside Junior Rodeo. Gates open for this year's 60th annual Woodside Junior Rodeo at 8 a.m. Sunday, July Fourth, at the Mounted Patrol Grounds, 521 Kings Mountain Road in Woodside. The main events start at noon. (Note: The cover photo is also by Veronica Weber.)

his year's Independence Day events will include parades, a street fair, carnivals, and a rodeo, but fewer fireworks. Redwood City has canceled its traditional fireworks show, due to growing costs, and Stanford Lively Arts won't present its Independence Day fireworks and concert for the second year in a row. The concert was called off last year due to campus construction.

There are still plenty of family activities, however, ranging from the Redwood City Fourth of July parade to a pig scramble at the Woodside Junior Rodeo.

All the events listed below will be held on Sunday, July Fourth, unless otherwise noted.

Junior Rodeo in Woodside

The 60th annual NorCal Junior Rodeo, sponsored by the Mounted Patrol of San Mateo County, will be held Sunday, July Fourth, at the Mounted Patrol grounds at 521 Kings Mountain Road in Woodside.

Gates open at 8 a.m. The full day of events will include cowboys and cowgirls, ages 6 to 18, taking part in team roping, barrel racing, and even a pig scramble for the younger kids. The main events start at noon with the Presentation of the Colors by the Mounted Patrol Color Guard.

Admission is $20 for adults, $10 for ages 6-17, and free for kids 5 and under.

The Mounted Patrol will also hold a dinner-dance at the Mounted Patrol grounds on Saturday, July 3, starting at 6 p.m. For tickets, call 851-8300.

Menlo Park parade, festival

The city of Menlo Park will sponsor a community parade and festival on Sunday, with food, music and activities for all ages.

Kids and their families are invited to dress in red, white and blue and bring decorated tricycles and bikes, wagons, pets and floats to join the July Fourth parade, which begins at 11:45 a.m. Participants should assemble in the Wells Fargo parking lot, corner of Santa Cruz Avenue and Chestnut Street, at 11:30 a.m.

The parade will make its way down Santa Cruz Avenue, across El Camino Real, and end at Burgess Park.

The carnival begins at noon and features games, crafts, bounce houses, a rock-climbing wall, face painting and laser tag. The band, Dave and The Diamonds, will perform.

Wrist bands, required for games and activities, will be sold for $6 each. Food and drink will be sold separately.

Before the parade, Kepler's Books will hold an Independence Day story time at 10:30 a.m. at 1010 El Camino Real in Menlo Park. Two historical books, "John, Paul, George & Ben" by Lane Smith, and "Imogene's Last Stand" by Nancy Carpenter and Candace Fleming, will be read. Red, white and blue cupcakes will be served.

Redwood City parade, festival

The 72nd annual parade starts at 10 a.m. at Brewster and Winslow Street and travels through downtown Redwood City.

The parade will feature decorated floats, local performing groups, college bands, horses, and military groups.

The Peninsula Celebration Association is also sponsoring an arts and crafts festival along Middlefield Road from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be more than 60 crafts vendors and food and beverage booths.

The 10th annual Battle of the Bands starts at 1:30 p.m. in the San Mateo Credit Union parking lot with the U.C.

A grand & glorious 4th

By Marie Krenz

I take holidays in stride even though most of them require planning and effort. Especially Christmas. What should be an important religious event usually turns into nonstop card writing, gift purchases, cooking, and decorating.

Thanksgiving is an easier day. The family gathers at our old home in Woodside, and everyone pitches in to help. Someone picks the last of the rusty hydrangeas for the table, and we all enjoy the first of winter's fires as the day grows cool. We all contribute to the traditional dinner, which changes little from year to year.

I no longer like Halloween as the change to standard time brings on early darkness. As a child I loved Halloween and especially the parade in the schoolyard as we marched to a lively Souza record played on a standing Victrola. We children wore costumes made from orange and black crepe paper and even kept them on for the food sale that followed. I always bought the same lunch: Chocolate milk, a hot dog, and a slice of the cake my mother had contributed to the event.

But the best holiday of the year, bar none, was and is the Fourth of July. Each summer of our childhood we left foggy San Francisco the day after school closed to spend the entire vacation in Woodside with Grandmother and our uncles.

We always had a big gathering with family and friends on the holiday. The day was so important that each year my mother bought me a Fourth of July dress. I remember one in particular that was blue and white dotted Swiss with blue smocking.

I recall my uncles barbecuing steaks, Mother preparing chile con carne, and Grandmother standing by the stove, stirring a rich custard for the homemade ice cream. The boys and I took turns with the crank on the freezer until it became too difficult to turn, and the adults took over.

Each year, our uncles bought a box of fireworks. My brothers and I divided the packs of firecrackers, punks, and sparklers, which we lighted all afternoon. After dark the grownups shot off a huge array of skyrockets, pinwheels, and heaven knows what else. Today I shudder to think of the damage that could have resulted had a fire occurred.

Today we no longer have the fireworks, although we sometimes manage sparklers for the children. We do decorate the table and also the outside with flags and red, white, and blue streamers.

Many years ago when the old high school of my uncles was demolished, they bought the flagpole and had it transported to Woodside. Ever since, we always display the colors on the Fourth of July, and after dinner we have a flag-lowering ceremony. The children bring out a large box of service hats from World War I and World War II, and everyone dons his favorite.

If there is a bugler with us that day, he plays retreat as the flag is slowly brought to earth. Everyone stands at attention as a former seaman first class and a former Navy captain carefully fold the colors in the prescribed manner. Then, corny but heart-warming, we sing "America the Beautiful." After that it's time for ice cream and watermelon.

Labor Day has always been a sad holiday for me. It means the end of summer, the return to autumn activities. We do, however, have all the memories of a happy Woodside summer and an especially joyous Fourth of July. A

About the author:

Marie Wagner Krenz has been visiting or living in Woodside since the late 1920s, when her grandparents purchased a home there.

JOAN ELISABETH FLANIGAN

Died June 23, 2010 in Portola Valley, California. Joan was born September 16, 1931 to Neil and Beth Parsons in Fort Bragg, California. She attended elementary schools in Mendocino, Healdsburg and Martinez, California, Acalanes High School in Lafayette, California and the University of California at Berkeley, graduating in 1953.

In 1953, she married her husband, Don, a Navy pilot, and, following his graduation from Stanford Law School in 1956, moved to Del Mar, California where she raised two children, Susan and Bruce. Returning to the San Francisco Bay Area in 1962, she taught first at Portola Valley Windmill pre-school, and then K-1 at Ladera and Las Lomitas elementary schools, until her retirement from teaching. Her interests were many, including golf, sailing, flying, wine, gardening, travel and various volunteer activities.

She is survived by her brother, her husband of 57 years, two children, six grandchildren and many, many friends. No services are planned. Take a swing at a golf ball, have a glass of wine and smile. That would make her happy.

If you care to make a memorial donation, she suggested one to Stanford University with a cover note or notation that it is for 'Dr. Advani's Research', and mailed to Ranjana Advani MD, Stanford Cancer Center, Stanford, California (a wonderful doctor doing lymphoma research), to Pathways Hospice Foundation, Sunnyvale (which gave her so much invaluable care during her final days) or to the charity of your choice.

Author Barry Eisler serves up new thriller

By Joshua Falk

Special to The Almanac

In the opening pages of best-selling thriller novelist Barry Eisler's new book, "Inside Out," CIA officials scramble over the disappearance of 92 Agency waterboarding videotapes.

Sound familiar? The was inspired by New York Times articles reporting on the destruction of 92 CIA interrogation tapes in 2005.

"It's the most political book I've written," Mr. Eisler said of his latest release, a sequel to his 2009 New York Times bestseller "Fault Line."

Mr. Eisler, a Menlo Park resident, will speak about the new book at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 29, at Kepler's Books, 1010 El Camino Real in Menlo Park. The book, his ninth, is due to arrive in bookstores the same day.

In the new book, "Fault Line" protagonist Ben Treven is charged with finding and eliminating a rogue colleague who has stolen the CIA tapes in order to blackmail the U.S. government.

Although the story is the work of Mr. Eisler's imagination, he considers it "a fictional explanation for what has been reported in the real world." In fact, the novel's original manuscript included more than 80 footnotes that cited news articles detailing the factual events that form the story's backbone.

"If the things in the thriller couldn't really have happened," he said, "then for me the thrill starts to evaporate."

Mr. Eisler, a Cornell-trained lawyer turned CIA covert operative turned thriller writer, prizes himself on his penchant for detail. He visits the locations he depicts in his books to make sure he portrays them accurately; he fashions his characters based on interviews with experts and his experiences as a covert operative with the CIA; and he looks to the headlines for inspiration while crafting his plots.

"I'm drawn to thrillers — both as a reader and a writer — that are as accurate as possible," he said.

Mr. Eisler, who maintains his own news and politics blog, "Heart of the Matter," dedicates "Inside Out" to the bloggers. For each copy of "Inside Out" ordered from Kepler's before or during his June 29 event, Mr. Eisler said he will donate $5 to AlterNet, an independent, progressive news service.

"The blogosphere, I find, has much more of a devotion to getting to the truth," he said. "The information I come across in the blogosphere and write about in my own blog ends up forming the basis for my novels."

Other book tour appearances double as fundraisers for Fire-doglake, GRITtv, and Truthout, also independent, progressive news sources.

Mr. Eisler is distrustful of what he calls "establishment media": The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, Foreign Policy and Foreign Affairs. But he doesn't want anyone dismissing him as just another radical.

"The mainstream enslaves itself to the government by permitting government sources anonymity," Mr. Eisler said, "not only without good reason, but in fact in violation of the standards of integrity set by the newspapers in question."

"I'm pretty political," he said. "That's why I read so much, and it's why I blog myself."

"A lot of what the new book is about is the way the government manipulates the mainstream media so that the mainstream media essentially launders government propaganda," Mr. Eisler said. "Everything that's bad for America and good for thriller writers is in the book."

Although his writing has gotten more political since his first novel "Rain Fall," Mr. Eisler stresses that the purpose of his novels is still to entertain.

"When I want to make an overt political argument, that's what my blog is for," Mr. Eisler said.

"The main purpose of my novels has always been to entertain," Mr. Eisler added. "They're thrillers. If you're not thrilled, I haven't done my job." ■

Menlo Park Legends makes its move

By Michael Abramson
Special to The Almanac

Despite only having one full year under its belt, the Menlo Park Legends semi-pro baseball team is not curbing its expectations.

"We want to win league then go to Wichita and play for a national championship, simple as that," said David Klein, the manager, starting catcher, and founder of the Legends, and a Menlo-Atherton High School grad. "I don't think there is any reason we shouldn't win league."

The Legends are 11-4 so far, the most impressive victory a 2-1 nail-biter on the road against the San Luis Obispo Rattlers on June 21, a team Klein described as "our first real test." The Legends gave up only four hits in the game and finished with Menlo-Atherton grad Corey Zirbes throwing three scoreless innings of one-hit ball.

Nevertheless, the Legends recently hit a bit of a bump in the road, dropping two games to the Santa Barbara Foresters on June 22 and 23 by scores of 5-3 and 6-3. The Foresters are the 2006 and 2008 National Baseball Congress national champs and except for 2002, the California Collegiate League champs every year since 1993.

Still, the Legends put up 17 hits in the two games, and simply competing against one of the best semi-pro teams in the country speaks volumes.

Playing in the Pacific-West Baseball League, the Legends compete against six other teams from around the Bay Area. The league is competitive, but Klein says: "This team is going to be playing for a long time and will keep going up every year. I expect to join the Tri-State League next year."

Despite the team's relative infancy compared to many other semi-pro teams, several high-profile players agreed to join this year. Ben Clowe, Jack Mosbacher, Kellen McColl, and Ryan Sakowski are all current players on the Stanford baseball team.

Other players draw from Division 1 schools such as UC Santa Barbara, University of San Diego, New Mexico State, University of San Francisco, UC Berkeley, Miami, USC, and Columbia.

Center fielder Daniel Johnston, an M-A grad and now a student at Canada College, was just drafted in the 47th round of the Major League Baseball draft by the Florida Marlins.

The Legends wrap up a five-game home stand Wednesday, June 30, against the San Francisco Seagulls. Game time is 5 p.m. at Bettencourt Field at M-A High, 555 Middlefield Road in Menlo Park, the Legends' home diamond.

Hats, jerseys and shirts are sold at every Legends home game. Hats can be purchased for $25 and shirts are available for $15.

Kids can still sign up for four of the Legends' weeklong summer baseball camps. The camps, for players ages 6 to 15, are put on by Legends players at M-A High and last one week each.

Visit longurls.com/legends for more information on the camps.

Basketball

The Legends have expanded recently to form a semi-pro summer basketball team. The team will play in the Burgess Men's A-League and likely several tournaments throughout the summer, as well. Charlie Peck will act as player/coach of the team, similar to David Klein's position with the baseball team.

Klein does have a message for another local semi-pro team: "I really want to take on the Palo Alto Oaks, but they don't want to play us. They beat us last year, so I've got a little vengeance for them. They have an open invitation to play us, anytime, anywhere." ■ year and, following his graduation from Stanford Law School in 1956, the couple moved to Del Mar. The Flanigans returned to the Bay Area in 1962.

Ms. Flanigan had many interests, including golf, sailing, flying in the couple's Beechcraft Bonanza airplane, wine, gardening and travel. She served as president of the Stanford Women's Nine Hole Golf Group and as a board member of the Women's Nine Hole Golf Association.

She volunteered for several organizations, most recently the Health Insurance Counseling and Advocacy Program of San Mateo County.

Ms. Flanigan is survived by her husband of 57 years, Don Flanigan; daughter Susan Bates of Pagosa Springs, Colorado; son Bruce Flanigan of Orangevale; brother Dr. Norman Parsons; and six grandchildren. No services are planned.

Donations in her name may be made to: Dr. Ranjana Advani, Stanford Cancer Center, 875 Blake Wilbur Drive, Stanford, CA 94305, with a cover letter stating it is for Dr. Advani's research; or to Pathways Hospice Foundation in Sunnyvale; or to a favorite charity.

Joseph E.A. Sauer

Retired certified public accountant

Joseph E.A. Sauer of Woodside died June 18 at the age of 92.

Mr. Sauer was born in Oakland and raised in Chico. He graduated from UC Berkeley in 1941, the same year he was married to Cecilia Welsh, also a UC Berkeley graduate.

Joseph Sauer

Mr. Sauer began his career in accounting at Pan American Airways. He later worked for Skinner and Hammond and obtained his CPA license. After a year in Bakersfield, he joined Barlow, Davis and Wood, where he became a partner. Through a series of mergers, he became retired partner of Deloitte.

An Eagle Scout in his youth, Mr. Sauer loved the mountains. He backpacked and went fly-fishing on 38 trips to the High Sierras, Oregon and Washington, say family members. From Yosemite to Lassen Park, he and his family camped in or visited 17 national parks in the Western United States and Canada.

He and his wife, Cecilia, traveled extensively, visiting Europe, China, Tibet, seven other Asian countries, as well as Canada, Alaska, the Caribbean, Hawaii, and Mexico. He was an avid bridge player, enjoying twice-weekly games.

Mr. Sauer is survived by his children, Teresa (Teri) of Silverdale, Washington; Gregory of Orlando, Florida; Karen of Boston; and Paul of Woodside; plus seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. His wife of 60 years, Cecilia, died in 2002.

Funeral services have been held.
