The Big C usually refers to cancer, but in the case of a new movie coming out in theaters on Friday, July 12, C also stands for comedy and connections, local connections.

The executive producer is Laurie Kraus Lacob of Woodside and the investors who backed the feature film, “The Hot Flashes,” are for the most part Silicon Valley women.

Ms. Lacob believes one of the main reasons the project resonated with them is because it’s “about a group of women in their late 40s who find a cause, jump behind it, and find that they empower themselves and find a new lease on life.”

The cause is early detection of breast cancer. In the movie a friend dies from breast cancer, and on her behalf a group of women, all former high school basketball players, bands together to keep a mobile mammography unit operating in a small town in Texas. They put on a fundraiser, challenging the high school girls’ state champions to basketball games.

Ms. Lacob describes another storyline in the film as “the philandering husband having a midlife crisis.”

The film stars Brooke Shields, Wanda Sykes, Daryl Hannah, Camryn Manheim and Virginia Madsen as teammates; Mark Povinelli as their coach; and Eric Roberts as the unfaithful husband.

Before filming in 2012, Ms. Sykes had a double mastectomy, but Ms. Lacob says as a standup comedian, the actress still brought hilarity into every scene.

“The really challenging thing and fun thing is none of them had played basketball before, so we put them through a two-week-long training camp,” Ms. Lacob says. A former president of the Women’s National Basketball Association, Donna Orender, ran the camp and advised on all the basketball sequences on the set.

The film was shot in 25 days in the New Orleans area. Chloe McNally of Woodside spent her spring break from New York University there, acting as one of the high school players (#24). She had played high school basketball and says she admired the professional actresses because “they were all so game to play. They did all their own stunts. ... They would give us tips for acting, and we’d give them basketball tips. It was a collaborative experience.”

Two other Woodsiders appear in the film for a few seconds. Ms. Lacob’s daughter, Kayci, is in one shot, and investor Susan Breyer is in another. Ms. Breyer’s mother is a breast cancer survivor, but what really drew Ms.

Three Kinds of Home Care at Home Care Assistance

Our three tiers of care are always available to clients with no extra cost!

While most agencies merely offer hourly care to the unwell, only Home Care Assistance covers the three major areas of home care: Balanced Care, Dementia Care and Post-hospitalization Care. We provide our clients specially trained caregivers and programs that were developed for each of these areas. And our caregivers are available on a live-in or hourly basis!

Just take a look...

Balanced Care is for those seniors who choose to age in their own homes. All caregivers receive training in our Balanced Care Method™, which is a holistic program that promotes a healthy mind, body and spirit for aging adults.

Cognitive Therapeutics is provided to help delay memory problems. We use specially trained caregivers to provide an active set of cognitive interventions, developed by Dementia Therapeutics, to slow the progression of Alzheimer's and dementia. No other home care agency can provide Dementia Therapeutics Method™ trained caregivers.

Hospital to Home Care is for those seniors who need help after a medical incident. We are the experts on a smooth recovery at home, having written the popular book From Hospital to Home Care. And most importantly, our caregivers are available 24/7 at the economical live-in rate.

One last thing...

Other home care agencies require strict contracts and special charges. There could be hidden meal-time rates, transportation charges, an over-night rate, or a even a bathing rate. Not so at Home Care Assistance. We have no contracts or obligations! And there are never hidden fees!

Call today to learn about our unique approach to home care!

Breyer to the film is “there are no movies about middle-age women that have a lot of heart, soul and courage,” whereas this film “is a celebration of women with humor, a lot of love and energy.”

“Good Morning America” TV host Robin Roberts makes a cameo appearance. “She’s a breast cancer survivor and former college basketball player; she was herself, and put a plug in for women of a certain age who still got game,” Ms. Lacob says.

Ms. Lacob is an ovarian cancer survivor and her sister is a breast cancer survivor. Ms. Lacob serves on the Advisory Council for the Stanford Cancer Institute and the Steering Committee for the Stanford Women’s Cancer Center. She says she hasn’t played basketball since grade school, but has spent countless hours watching her four kids play at Menlo School. One now plays at Washington University and another one is assistant general manager for the Golden State Warriors.

A friend introduced Ms. Lacob to San Francisco writer Brad Hennig, a Texan who played basketball and lost both his mother and aunt to breast cancer. This is his first screenplay to be produced. He produced it with two veterans of the business: Nina Henderson Moore, a cancer survivor who played basketball and worked as a cable TV executive with BET and Starz, and Susan Seideman, who directed “Desperately Seeking Susan,” “She Devil,” “Boyton Beach Club,” and the TV pilot for “Sex and the City.” She directed “The Hot Flashes,” too.

Jenny Johnson, chief operating officer of Franklin Resources, also served as executive producer.

Their job, Ms. Lacob says, was to raise $6 million to make the film. Out of the two and a half years she has been involved, Ms. Lacob estimates, the fundraising part took about 18 months.

Jane Solomon was living in Woodside when she invested. Her aunt, sister and cousin are breast cancer survivors, and like Ms. Lacob, she is involved with Under One Umbrella event, a benefit for the Stanford Women’s Cancer Center.

That’s where another important connection was made. Sheryl Crow spoke about her own battle with breast cancer when she performed at a luncheon in Menlo Park in 2012. Shortly after that, Ms. Lacob says, “We convinced her to write a song for this movie. It rolls during credits. ... It’s called ‘Leaning in a new direction’ and is about women supporting each other ... the value of friendship, sisterhood, friends you can count on.”

Another investor, Joanie Sullivan of Woodside, was thrilled to attend a private showing of the movie at Stanford on June 24. It was an appreciation event for Under One Umbrella donors. The Sullivans’ daughter, Sue Foley, survived breast cancer and husband Jack Sullivan invested in the movie as a birthday present to his wife.

Most of the other investors attended the Hollywood premier on June 27, where they walked down a pink carpet instead of red, and enjoyed an after-party hosted by the film’s partner, the American Cancer Society. The actresses filmed a PSA for the organization to promote getting mammograms.

So far the film has sold out at film festivals in Miami and Dallas, and in Oklahoma City, where the showings were fundraisers for tornado victims.

On July 12, the movie will be playing in theaters in a dozen cities, including AMC Mercado in Santa Clara and Sundance Kabuki in San Francisco. That same day it will be released on video on demand. The DVD version will come out later.

The movie is rated R due to some colorful language, and what Ms. Lacob calls “sexual innuendo and a little drug use.”

She notes as a first-timer to the film industry: “I learned a lot on this one. ... I would certainly know more the next time, and am open to it.” ■

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE REQUIRED BY THE CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Este informe contiene información muy importante sobre su agua potable. Tradúzcalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

The O'Connor Tract Co-Operative Water Company has levels of manganese above the secondary drinking water standard.

Although this is not an emergency, as our customers, you have a right to know what you should do, what happened, and what we are doing to correct this situation. Our water system is in violation of a secondary drinking water standard.

We routinely monitor for the presence of drinking water contaminants. Water sample results for the second quarter monitoring in 2013 have manganese levels of 62 ppb in well #1 and 150 ppb in well #2 (ppb=parts per billion). This is above the secondary drinking water standard, or secondary maximum contaminant level of 50 ppb. Manganese concentrations above the standard may have an effect on taste and tend to leave black deposits in some plumbing systems.

What should I do?

- You do not need to use an alternative water supply (e.g., bottled water). There is no health risk.

What happened? What is being done?

O'Connor Water has been above the secondary standard for manganese for many years, and this has been described to members in the annual Report on Water Quality Measurements. Recent state regulations have imposed stricter requirements for complying with the secondary standard for manganese. The state has issued the company a citation for noncompliance. The state ordered the company to start quarterly monitoring in February 2012, and this monitoring was completed in September 2012. The state also required that manganese monitoring be continued quarterly and that the results of these tests be reported to the members.

The company has contracted with an engineering company to study best available technologies for either manganese removal or sequestration (adding a chemical so that the manganese does not precipitate from the water). The report has been received, and the company will be contacting members to decide whether they wish to remove or sequester the manganese, or request a waiver from the secondary standard.

Please share this information with all the other people who drink this water, especially those who may not have received this public notice directly (for example, people in apartments, nursing homes, schools, and businesses). You can do this by posting this public notice in a public place or distributing copies by hand or mail.
