Patrick Wilkinson of Woodside stands on the centerboard of the capsized sailboat and grabs the gunnel as part of an exercise to pull the craft upright.

Molly O'Bryan Vandemoer, the coach and director of the Peninsula Youth Sailing Foundation and a 2012 Olympian in sailboat racing, works on assigning boats to students.

Local foundation teaches sailing and leadership skills to teens

"I am a very competitive person and I see sailing for me as a sport I will do for the rest of my life," says Patrick Wilkinson, left, as he and shipmate Maddie Roman practiced maneuvers off the Port of Redwood City.

The combination of white sails, saltwater, fresh breezes and youthful enthusiasm combine to make for a good time on most weekends just off the Port of Redwood City.

As it has since its formation in 2000, the Peninsula Youth Sailing Foundation teaches kids to sail. The boats are dinghies: the 7-foot, single-sail Optimist for young kids, and for older kids, the 13-foot Flying Junior, a pure racing craft with main and jib sails and rigging for a spinnaker — the spectacular but high-maintenance balloon-like sail used for running downwind.

The sailing foundation is co-hosting the PortFest at the Port of Redwood City, held this year on Saturday, Oct. 5. Along with an onshore fair, on-the-water activities will include an introduction to sailing for kids and teens, boat rides, kite boarding and crewing. Vessels expected include the Gryphon, a restored Army transport vessel operated by the Sea Scouts; and the Robert G. Brownlee, a research vessel operated by the Marine Science Institute.

The coach at the sailing foundation since September 2012 is Molly O'Bryan Vandemoer, a sailor of note and a participant in the 2012 summer Olympic Games in London, where she placed fifth in Laser Radial team racing.

“Sailing is a sport that anyone can pick up, no matter what age,” Ms. O’Bryan Vandemoer said in an email. “I love teaching all ages to sail. Being able to take a very abstract thing and see the light bulb go on for someone is awesome. It never gets old. My favorite type of kid to coach is one that is open minded to new things, adventurous, and capable of laughing at themselves. Sailing is a lifetime sport, so getting someone to love it is the goal.”

Lining up at the dock before setting off into the waters off the Port of Redwood City is a part of the discipline of sailing practice.

Close quarters are a fact of life in competitive sailing, an objective for some of the young sailors sailing with the Peninsula Youth Sailing Foundation.

Sunshine, saltwater and a sailboat to enjoy them are all part of the scene at sailing class for Dorothy Aldridge, left, and Grace Tully, both students at Menlo-Atherton High School.

Part of the deal in messing about in boats is moving them from place to place on land.

LOST B&W CAT WITH EXTRA TOES
My 14-lb male cat wandered off sometime on Sunday, September 8th from the area of San Antonio and California (Monroe Dr). A cat that fits his description was spotted on Wednesday the 11th on Diablo Avenue in Mountain View. He has extra toes on each of his massive paws, a black mustache under his black nose and his name is Shoe. He recently lost his collar and name tag but has been microchipped. He is a bit shy but will come if you shake a bag of food. If you see him, please contact me anytime day or night at 650-450-8205.
