Local photographers rephotograph Ansel Adams' pictures of Allied Arts Guild

By Sandy Brundage

Almanac Staff Writer

The stark black-and-white landscapes of California by Ansel Adams are iconic today, but when the photographer accepted an assignment in 1931 to shoot the Allied Arts Guild in Menlo Park, he was trying to put food on the table, according to Portola Valley photographer Alan McGee.

"At that time he was unable to satisfy his financial needs solely by print sales. His prints were selling for $3, which is about $36 today updated for inflation," Mr. McGee wrote in "Allied Arts Guild — Past and Present," a new booklet that shows "rephotographs" of the guild from the same vantage points that Mr. Adams used.

Mr. Adams went on to become the Allied Arts "photographer of record," taking the first shots of the interiors and exteriors shortly after the Spanish Colonial style buildings were completed at 75 Arbor Road in Menlo Park, according to the guild.

The idea for the booklet started when Mr. McGee met Stanford neurosurgeon Graham Creasey in 2010 at a local display of Mr. McGee's study of Auguste Rodin's artwork.

Mr. McGee recalled the meeting: "He came up and introduced himself, and we're chatting away and he says, 'Do you know anything about rephotography?' I said, 'Well, a little bit.' And he said, 'Why don't you photograph the Allied Arts Guild?'"

The pair agreed to work together and print their work in book form to be sold for the benefit of the Lucile Packard Children's Hospital. A guild historian, Millie Campbell, came up with a folio, held together by brass paper fasteners, containing 12 camera studies taken by Ansel Adams. Using the same angles and lighting as much as possible,

Mr. McGee rephotographed nine of the images, and Dr. Creasey shot the remainder.

The undertaking was not without a sense of adventure and revelation. While attempting to reprise the angle of an aerial view of the Cervantes Court, Mr. McGee notes in the booklet: “I used a step ladder to approximate Ansel’s camera position for this photograph. While on the ladder I realized that Ansel had been standing on the tile roof with his view camera and tripod. I decided that my top of the ladder position was close enough.”

Below the Ansel Adams photo is the 2010 rephotograph by Alan McGee of Portola Valley. The area looks much as it did with the exception of landscaping, an added cover to the building's entrance, and the addition of tile trim to the top of curved sections of the wall.

The idea was to include the original shots along with the new ones, but that was easier said than done.

“We managed to take (the folio) apart and scan everything ... and it came out just horribly,” Mr. McGee said, laughing. The photos in the folio were screened images (known as halftones), and scanning those can be problematic. After a bit of research, he found a way to improve the outcome by creating multiple scans of the originals. “And we were in business.”

The comparison of old with new reveals the careful preservation of architecture at Allied Arts Guild during the course of nearly 85 years: As the booklet notes, most of the changes involve landscaping and safety features, such as the addition of handrails and fire sprinklers.

Mr. McGee, 78, an engineer by trade, had creative urges “nibbling at the edges.” In 1974 he earned a master’s degree in photography from the California College of Arts and Crafts. His choice of specialty was practical: “Photography was probably the only thing I was good at. I’m not really good at drawing.”

The medium combined his interest in chemistry and art, he said, and grew as he learned more about the history of photography and its early practitioners. Then there was “the magic of the darkroom,” watching the print take form. But thanks to technological advances, “my darkroom is a junk room now; I can’t even get in there,” he said.

Ansel Adams, whose work he described as “very realistic, but augmented in terms of contrasts,” was an early influence, along with abstract photographers. And he has long been intrigued by the architecture of the Allied Arts Guild itself, particularly the frescoes and layout.

“It’s all been a good adventure,” Mr. McGee said.

The 39-page booklet will be available in approximately four weeks. While the initial print run will be small — about a dozen copies, according to Mr. McGee — he’s hoping the guild will support a larger run if interest is high. ■

On the cover: A view of the building that now contains a restaurant. The 1931 Ansel Adams photograph is on the bottom and the Alan McGee rephotograph on top.

Ansel Adams’ images are scans of halftone reproductions made from his negatives.

In this rephotograph by Alan McGee, a balcony has been replaced by a window, and a chimney that was atop what is now a restaurant is gone. Mr. McGee realized that Ansel Adams was standing on a slanted tile roof when he took his photograph. Mr. McGee decided that standing on a ladder was close enough.

The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 845 HARVARD AVENUE, MENLO PARK, CA 94025 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the Note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said Note(s), advances if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $692,074.69 (Estimated). However, prepayment premiums, accrued interest and advances will increase this figure prior to sale. Beneficiary's bid at said sale may include all or part of said amount. The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown in this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call Auction.com at 800.280.2832 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Web site address www.Auction.com for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08004260-14-1. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
