In keeping with its tradition, Menlo-Atherton High School started its June 4 graduation ceremonies on a patriotic note. The program included a rendition of “America the Beautiful,” a presentation of the stars and stripes by a color guard from the U.S. Marine Corps, and the singing of the national anthem by the M-A choir, directed by Patrick Maier.

Senior Class Adviser Sophia Bercow welcomed the assembled and introduced speakers from the senior class: Alan Martinez and Caroline Hodes spoke on “Find Yourself by Doing What You Love,” Matthew Vollrath gave a talk titled “Be Yourself: Not as Easy as it Sounds,” Rosa Chavez spoke on “Throughout Time,” and Andrea Gaini gave a talk titled “Every Day is a Great Day.”

Outgoing principal Matthew Zito added his remarks and presented the class to Sequoia Union High School District officials attending the ceremony: Superintendent James Lianides and board members Laura Martinez and Alan Sarver.

The choir followed up with “Feelin’ Good / Let’s Get It Started.”

Guidance counselor Francine Andrade, bilingual resource teacher Gregg Patner and guidance counselor Lara Sandora announced the names of the graduates as they came up to receive their diplomas. ■

M-A's longtime adviser steps down

Alice Kleeman wraps up 20 years and many long days as a college adviser

By Dave Boyce

Almanac Staff Writer

Over Alice Kleeman's 20 years of advising Menlo-Atherton High School students on their plans for college, with her summers abbreviated to the month of July, she said she's been exhausted by her job and sometimes stressed out, but never bored.

"It's that school that I love. It's all about M-A. It's just magical," she said in a conversation with the Almanac about her plans to retire on June 30. Ms. Kleeman has offered to advise her successor for the upcoming school year "on a very part-time basis," if asked.

M-A's magic may be in its mix, she said. Students come from families with huge differences in wealth and academic preparation. There are citizenship problems among the undocumented and families that see college as a secondary priority. Ethnic and socioeconomic diversity in advanced-placement and honors classes has improved, but an observer could justifiably say there's a long way to go, Ms. Kleeman said. Self-segregation among students along ethnic lines has lessened, but there's room for improvement, she said.

And notwithstanding wealth and academic preparation, students often have unrealistic dreams and expectations. "We help their expectations become adjusted somewhat," she said. A stellar student resume, for example, is not a "golden ticket" to any particular school. "There are legions of people with these qualifications," Ms. Kleeman said. "There isn't room at Harvard for everybody who's amazing."

"I think trying to serve all these students is a lofty goal," she said. "It's incredibly challenging. We're just constantly trying to do a better job and to serve kids better. ... Nobody around here sits back and says, 'That's good enough.'"

A well-educated mom

Speaking of Harvard University, that is Ms. Kleeman's alma mater — a biographical note not widely known, she said. She applied to eight universities, including Smith, Wellesley, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Wisconsin. "I would have happily, happily gone to any one," she said. Harvard wasn't her first choice. She stopped by for an interview on her way to another college, she said.

Her focuses in college were

Alice Kleeman

Romance languages, specifically French and Portuguese, and literature. She picked up Spanish later by listening to a Spanish-language station on her car radio for three years, she said.

As for Harvard, "I was the least intellectual person that I'd met there in four years," she said. "My career goal, from forever, was to be a mom." She said she chose Harvard because she didn't think it would hurt to be a well-educated mom.

M-A's magic may be in its mix, she said. Students come from families with huge differences in wealth and academic preparation.

She went on to raise three children while working at home. A "super fast" typist, she earned an income by transcribing interviews, a sideline that continues to this day, she said. It's interesting work, it pays well and she can set her own schedule, she said.

Of her children, all three teach in the Menlo Park City School District and two are married to teachers. At Thanksgiving, they talk about their students and education. "We're probably really boring," she said.

Ms. Kleeman is 64 and now situated so she no longer has to work full time, but she will be volunteering somehow. "I'm not going to sit around and do nothing," she said. "Well maybe for a month. I'd like to see what it feels like to wake up in the morning and not have an enormous agenda."

'Almost like triage'

In the lives of her seniors, Ms. Kleeman frequently represented another adult, an extension of parenting, she said.

The most demanding aspect of her job was volume. As M-A's lone college adviser, her office was a convergence point for 450 seniors every year. Not all of them stopped by, but 14-hour days were common, she said. If it wasn't an essay to review, it was a college application.

"It's just overwhelming," she said. "It was almost like triage. Every day is so different and so crazy. ... There are all kinds of things that upset the apple cart."

She established a tradition of a Sunday email to remind seniors of what they should be thinking about in the upcoming week. If six or seven seniors asked a particular question in the previous week, she would include it and answer it in the email.

It was strategic. Communicate with the seniors as a group, answering some questions ahead of time, so as to make time for higher quality exchanges when speaking person-to-person.

Her job required her to stay on top of changes to processes for applying to college. The critical issues: changes at the University of California and California State University systems, financial aid, testing, and changes to "common" applications — online applications that hundreds of colleges now accept. The days of folding, stamping and mailing applications are mostly gone, she said.

She visited hundreds of campuses, paid for by the universities and usually in early December, a slow period for her. She typically spent several days there talking with professors and students and going on tours. "I don't think you could do this job without (those visits)," she said.

When she considered a particular student's plans and recommended a college as potentially a good fit, parents may turn around and book a flight to that campus. "That's a huge responsibility that requires a lot of trust and credibility," she said. "I take it very seriously."

Parents ran the gamut in terms of their engagement. Some were uninvolved, so she spent her time vigorously encouraging them to get involved. Others she had to ask to step back and let the student handle the issue. She chose her words carefully.

She has two bits of advice that apply across the board: Always apply for financial aid, and arrange your high school experience with an eye to balance and health.

Don't take too many AP or honors classes simultaneously, and never ask the question, "Will this look good to a college?" she said. "Incredibly, you'll have lots of great college options." ■

“If I want a Best Seller, I advertise in the Almanac and the Weekly.” – Lyn Jason Cobb

As a Realtor serving Menlo Park, Palo Alto, Atherton, Portola Valley and Woodside, I do my utmost to provide extraordinary service to my clients. The Almanac and the Palo Alto Weekly is always where I advertise first because I like the home delivery, editorial focus, and it is a great value. I have always had great results promoting open homes in the Palo Alto Weekly and The Almanac, and I also run in special publications like Spring and Fall Real Estate, Neighborhoods and Info Menlo because of the great coverage and online presence. I am also a big believer in the Palo Alto Weekly's Open Home Guide, which is by far the most accurate and comprehensive. I've had many buyers bring in the guide to my 'Open Homes' to see what I have listed.”

DELEON REALTY SUMMER SPLASH

DeLeon Realty is excited to announce the July Summer Splash.

Buyers often want to buy homes during the summer so they can get settled before the new school year. However, real estate agents have traditionally advised sellers to wait until the fall because the low inventory causes buyers to lose focus.

In response to what buyers and sellers want, DeLeon Realty is breaking with tradition and releasing some of the year's best listings between July 13th and July 26th.

There will be special incentives for anyone who buys a DeLeon listing during the Summer Splash, including a $5,000 gift certificate to Flegel's Interior Design & Home Furnishings. That's right, DeLeon Realty will attract more BUYERS by giving them $5,000 to spend at one of Silicon Valley's best furniture stores

Check out the next issue of The DeLeon Insight or visit www.DeLeonRealty.com for more information.

The home must be in contract by July 31, 2016. The transaction must close by September 1, 2015 and the Gift Certificate must be used by March 31, 2016. There is no cash value to the certificate. Proposition 65 Warning

L-3 Randtron Antenna Systems operates facilities located at and around 130 Constitution Dr., Menlo Park which uses and emits chemicals known to the State of California to cause cancer, birth defects, or other reproductive harm. We do not believe that any person is exposed to these chemicals at levels constituting a health or safety risk. However, we have not made a formal determination that actual exposure levels are below the Proposition 65 "no significant risk" levels for carcinogens or "no observable effect" levels for chemicals known to cause reproductive harm, and we have not performed a risk analysis to determine the precise amount of exposure that any individual would receive over a 70 year period. Proposition 65 therefore obligates us to provide this warning to potentially effected individuals. Further information may be obtained by contacting L-3 Randtron Antenna Systems at 650-326-9500 Ext. 483.
